MESSAGE FROM THE CEO

Thank you for teaming up with Atlas Network in 2019 to increase global prosperity through the promotion of freedom!

We closed the year celebrating a major milestone: our partner network now encompasses 502 organizations in 99 countries.

Nearly 40 percent of those partners are located here in the United States. The establishment of our new Center for the U.S. and Canada reflects our belief that it’s critical to repair and sustain the institutions of freedom at home so that our continent can remain a shining beacon for the rest of the world.

At the same time, however, the courage and tenacity of our partners in unfree countries around the world is an incredible source of inspiration. Their fight for freedom is our fight for freedom, and our regional centers in Latin America and Africa support emerging markets for the ideas of liberty.

The worldwide nature of Atlas Network’s mission reminds all of us that we own the moral high ground in the critical debates of our time. Let’s remember this as we work together to achieve new victories for liberty.

I hope this report on our work in 2019 makes you proud to be part of an optimistic social movement that is growing in numbers and in effectiveness. With your help, the 2020s can be a new era of freedom, producing an expansion of peace and prosperity.

Regional Liberty Forums
Making new connections is at the core of our Regional Liberty Forums, which were held in Sri Lanka, Greece, Dominican Republic, and Kenya. Nearly 900 think tank leaders from 89 countries came together to learn, network, and build new opportunities for liberty to thrive.

Lights Camera Liberty Workshop
Got an iPhone? You can make a movie! But how can you tell a great story that showcases your message? During the Lights, Camera, Liberty film and messaging workshop in Los Angeles, directors, producers, and marketing experts worked with 54 aspiring filmmakers from 16 countries, all eager to learn how their stories of freedom might translate into compelling films.

Economic Freedom Audits
Held in partnership with the Fraser Institute, Atlas Network sponsored Economic Freedom Audits in Côte d’Ivoire, South Africa, Lebanon, Bosnia, and Ecuador. The audits assess local data, policies, and opportunities for greater economic freedom so that partners can use this information to develop and share practical policy reform ideas with policymakers, media, and the general public.
Leadership Trainings
Atlas Network rolled out new leadership training programs that meet the needs of think tank staff at all career levels:

- Leader Lab: This hands-on leadership development workshop equips emerging think tank leaders with an understanding of how to manage a think tank, including research, operations, communications, coalitions, fundraising, and management.
- Executive Accelerator: Building on administrative skills and assessing leadership strengths is the next step for think tank executives, who use data-driven insights to understand strategic planning, team management, and entrepreneurial thinking.
- Global Influencer Summit: Senior think tank leaders work together to focus on “big-picture” strategies, drawing from the insights of business and non-profit thought leaders outside of the think tank world.
- CEO Summits: During these two day-summits, chief executives from around the world focus on strategy, methods, and common challenges as they network on ways to increase the global impact of the freedom movement.

Smith Fellowships
Smith Fellows are up-and-coming leaders from around the world who come to Washington D.C. to learn about marketing, fundraising, management, and more. Smith Fellows from Nepal, Honduras, India, Argentina, and Lithuania spent time with Atlas Network in 2019.

Nebraska is one of many states that have made it difficult to earn a living with burdensome licensure laws that protect entrenched special interests at the expense of both consumers and aspiring entrepreneurs. The Platte Institute in Omaha is playing a central role in reducing these laws and setting precedents that can be used as a regulatory reform model across the United States.

“The Atlas Network has been a tremendous partner for the Platte Institute,” said Adam Weinberg, communications and outreach director at Platte Institute. “Atlas Network training and resources have helped us achieve our organizational goals and has brought our work to the attention of national and international audiences.”

With Platte’s advocacy leading the way, the Nebraska legislature has adopted licensing reforms for more than fifteen professions, including barbers, cosmetologists, car salesmen, hair braiders, and others. Their efforts are also helping Nebraskans with past criminal convictions find out if they are eligible for licensure before wasting time and money on training. Platte’s signature model legislation has been praised by The Wall Street Journal editorial board as a standard for the nation.

In 2016, the Platte Institute became involved in occupational licensing reform by supporting a movement to exempt natural hair braiding from cosmetology licensure. With their help, a reform bill was passed, but nearly 200 other professions in Nebraska still required state licensing, including some occupations not directly identified in state statutes.

Each reduced licensing requirement means new opportunities for everyday Nebraskans to make a living by pursuing their passions. In 2018, Nebraska adopted the Occupational Board Reform Act, a comprehensive review of all state occupational licensing laws. Each state license must be scrutinized at least once every five years, in order to identify potential regulatory alternatives that would be less restrictive than licensing.

In 2019, the Nebraska Legislature adopted a waiver for first-time occupational licensing fees for many low-income workers, military families, and young people, and more bills to reform or repeal individual licensing requirements have been heard in committee.

Other states are beginning to take notice of “The Nebraska Model” for occupational licensing reform. Platte’s leadership is helping to raise national awareness of this challenge.

The Platte Institute’s work on occupational licensing was a finalist for the 2019 Templeton Freedom Award.
Indonesia’s rich and abundant farmland produces more than 30 million metric tons of rice annually, and yet 30 percent of Indonesian children suffer from malnutrition and other lingering effects of food insecurity. Why? The country’s protectionist trade policies have pushed local prices out of the reach of many low-income consumers, who simply cannot afford to buy enough rice to feed their families.

The Center for Indonesian Policy Studies (CIPS) has been instrumental in combatting an entrenched culture of bias against free markets in the food sector, especially after food prices spiked in the country. Their advocacy caught the attention of President Joko Widodo, who had rejected the idea of rice imports after his initial election in 2014. But with prices rising and more families suffering, Indonesia’s Ministry of Trade used CIPS’ research to make the case for removing restrictions on imports, opening up the market for consumers.

CIPS’ HakMakMur campaign, which brings together experts in food security, poverty alleviation, nutrition, farming, and shipping, is reaching millions with the message of free trade. Using research to measure and track consumer food costs, CIPS shows how liberalized trade policies can help ensure access to affordable food. Bakoel Kosong (Empty Bowl), a new film on food insecurity inspired by Atlas Network’s Lights, Camera, Liberty workshop, jumpstarted discussions among young people, and CIPS’ media presence, with more than 1,300 articles between 2017-2019, are key to keeping the issue in the public consciousness.

“CIPS spent years on research and advocacy against protectionist trade restrictions that disproportionately harm the poor. Atlas Network has been at our side throughout the process with fruitful advice and resources.”

When the Honduran government began revising its tax code in 2014, Fundación Eléutera contributed fifteen different reforms that reinforce the rule of law and that protect the rights of Hondurans—specifically small business owners—by reducing arbitrary government intervention. Before these reforms, a business could be searched and shut down for almost any reason at any time, and the owners had to pay 100 percent of the fines levied against them before they could even have the chance of disputing the charges before a judge. As of now, large businesses have to pay 20 percent of the fine to take the dispute to court, and medium and small enterprises pay 10 percent and 5 percent respectively. Eléutera has also challenged this economic barrier to justice in the Supreme Court, with the final decision pending.

Now, government agencies are required to obtain warrants before searching or suspending a business and follow strict due process. Additionally, businesses can only be shut down for breaking Honduran laws, not for violating administrative regulations (which can change rapidly and on short notice). And, if a business wishes to go to court and fight charges made against them by any government agencies, they only pay a fraction of the total fines. Over 2,200,000 Hondurans have benefitted from these reforms in just a short period of time. For their work to strengthen the rule of law in Honduras, Fundación Eléutera won the 2019 Latin America Liberty Award.

“As Eléutera has gained traction and credibility in a country with limited experience in dealing with policy think tanks, the Atlas Network has helped us to train our team, connected us to many other organizations which can share their experiences, as well as boosted our effort through grants that help us fight above our weight class,” said Guillermo Peña Panting, president of Eléutera. “There is no other organization that has been better to ‘show us the way’ in this adventure.”
Students’ Organization for Liberty and Entrepreneurship (SOLE)

Land is one of South Sudan’s most precious—and most disputed—resources, but for most women, cultural norms have pushed landownership out of reach. Although the country has adopted legal protections that explicitly recognize the rights of women, the laws are often ignored in more isolated areas of the country, and a lack of knowledge fuels this deeply entrenched discrimination.

Students’ Organization for Liberty and Entrepreneurship (SOLE), under the leadership of executive director John Mustapha Kutiyote, is laying the foundations for change to a system that continues to push women out of home ownership and onto the streets.

At Atlas Network’s 2019 Africa Think Tank Shark Tank, Kutiyote’s winning project shared the stories of women treated as dee mara saki, or “she’s just a woman,” a phrase that embodies the cultural prejudice that keeps women from asserting their private property rights. With the support of Atlas Network, SOLE launched an awareness campaign that includes special workshops, community meetings, and radio outreach to help women understand and assert their legal status.

To date, more than 500 women have attended one of SOLE’s workshops in Yambio and Nzara, located in the country’s Western Equatoria state on the border of the Democratic Republic of the Congo. In bringing together women who have been affected by this harmful custom, Kutiyote has also sought to share positive growth that will inspire others.

One enterprising woman told the audience that she had created a successful business that enabled her to send her children to school and feed her family. “I have 8 plots which I bought. I have put up some structures which are being used for renting. This training has confirmed to me that I was on the right track, but I have learned that obtaining a land lease is very important if I am to obtain loans from the bank.”

With the goal of training at least 1,500 women and engaging another 8,000 people through community outreach and media, Kutiyote is making plans for the project to continue through the first half of 2020. “With Atlas Network’s support,” he says, “we can together change the culture of dee mara saki into dee maa mara saki: she is not ‘just’ a woman, but a woman who has the right and ability to own private property for prosperity.”
Libertarian Club Libek in Serbia won the 2018 Think Tank Shark Tank competition to create a news platform to inform the country’s contemporary political debate with daily political opinion and a classical liberal perspective on developments in the region. The seed funding from the Think Tank Shark Tank has made a world of difference for the success of the project, as Talas has become one of the leading independent outlets in Serbia, read on daily basis by political opinion leaders in media, political parties, government, and the opposition, as well as by business leaders and civil society leaders. Several thought leaders have even publicly stated that Talas is their favorite outlet for political commentary.

“The funding from the Think Tank Shark Tank really planted the seed for the growth of our media outlet and the success it had in 2019,” said Petar Čekerevac, executive manager of Libek. “But equally important for our success in 2019 were Atlas Network training programs and networking opportunities, which helped us focus, avoid mistakes and secure additional funding. The Smith Fellowship in which I participated in 2018, and the Liberty Forum events were of fundamental importance to our work in 2019.”

In November 2019 Libek had record-breaking website traffic of 500,000 website hits a month by over 372,000 users, and over 700,000 unique users visited the website in 2019. The growth in reach is followed by a steady growth of their community on social media, where they make over half a million impressions a month. Even the Prime Minister of Serbia, who Libek often criticizes, started following Talas from her personal Twitter account and gave an exclusive statement for Talas in August 2019.

Talas content was quoted by the mainstream, independent, and local media in Serbia over 50 times in 2019, including the most popular political websites, TV, and print media in the country.

Libek seeks to grow Talas into the most popular non-mainstream media online political outlet in Serbia and to continue to build their brand as the go-to place for quality political content. Talas has brought the classical liberal perspective on political and economic topics to all of those who value individual liberty, free markets, entrepreneurship, and peace in the Balkans.
